

Sept. 2 '97

Dear Mr. Weisberg!

This article astounded me. I never knew of the other wounds suffered by Dr. King. —

This sounds like another "Magic Bullet" to me, and should be a key into reopening this investigation.

The death of Princess Diana doesn't seem real to me yet. I was shaken deeply. I always admired her and thought she was beautiful. But I was shocked at the intensity of my sadness. I'm less than five years, we have lost the only two women the world could look to for grace and dignity under pressure. Jacqueline and now Diana. It makes me wonder where God is and what he is doing.

I'll write soon!

Carla —

Hello Mrs. Weisberg!

1 Th with autopsy covered on News

2A □ TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1997 •

News briefs

Doctor who treated King breaks 29-year silence

ATLANTA — Breaking a 29-year silence, Rufus Brown, the first doctor to treat the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. minutes after he was shot in Memphis in 1968, said Monday that he's always wondered how the fatal bullet could have made so many odd turns. The official autopsy reports that the lone bullet entered King's body about an inch to the right of his mouth, fractured his jaw bone, exited his right chin and re-entered the base of the neck above the collarbone. The bullet then made a sharp left turn, continuing down and across King's neck, severing the spinal cord and finally lodging in the left lung. In Memphis, Tenn., attorneys for James Earl Ray said they will file a petition in Nashville today seeking his release pending a trial.

The pansy has m
faces under a ho
The official nam
bouquet is Viola

Box 181, Newton, MA 02168
PRINTED IN AMERICA, W6

PRINTED ON RECYCLED PAPER

©MCKXII, Julia Bell, Inc.
All rights reserved

